

2009 is International Year of Astronomy

Astronomers at Glasgow University and Glasgow Science Centre are teaming up to promote an exciting programme of public astronomy events throughout the year, and in particular during Autumn Moonwatch – October 24th to November 1st 2009

From dark sky observing to public lectures and exhibitions, activities will offer something for everyone, and together will create our very own scale model of the Solar System!

With Glasgow Science Centre representing the Sun, astronomy events will take place on 'planets', 'moons' and 'asteroids' all across the country – from Shetland to Stranraer.

To find events in your area visit our website at:
